Argenteuil, France, July 17. (By the A. P.)—Yale's unbent variety crew won the Olympic regatta championship today when the eight-oared crew swept to a brilliant victory by 3 1/2 lengths over Canada, with Italy third and with Great Britain, expected to give the Americans the hardest fight, fourth and last. Rowing with the same power and precision they had shown in their sensational victories in the United States, the Yale oarsmen, after a slow start, took a lead from the Italian crew and raced their rivals out of sight over the last three-quarters of the distance to lower their own record for the 2,000-meter course to 6 minutes 33 2/5 seconds in spite of the brisk wind.

Italy gave the Americans their closest competition most of the way but the Toronto University crew, representing Canada, flushed a closing spurt to take second place. The Canadians, however, were unable to gain on the flying leaders who swept across the finish line amid a wildly enthusiastic ovation in which the frenzied yell of Eli men and friends were uppermost.

The 10 points earned by the triumph of the Yale crew were just enough to give the United States victory in the rowing competition by one point over the gallant Swiss competitors. The point score at the end of the day was United States 33; Switzerland 32; Great Britain 27; France 21; Holland 12; Italy 12; Canada 10; Australia three and Brazil three.

HELEN WILLS WINS
Olympic Stadium, Columbus, Ohio, July 17. (By the A. P.)—Miss Helen Wills, American woman lawn tennis champion, today defeated Mrs. Molla Burjatoff Mallory, former American champion, representing Norway, in the Olympic tennis championship, 6-3, 6-8.

WIN SWIMMING HONORS
Olympic Swimming Pool, Deauville, France, July 17. (By the A. CONVENTION SUGGESTED

Leaguers May Hold One To Consider Action

Suggestion that Nonpartisan League state convention will decide the attitude of the organization in the November election is made in the North Dakota Nonpartisan, published here. The newspaper declared, with respect to the question as to whether the League will run candidates in the fall against the successful Independents in the Republican primary, that no one knows the answer.

The state executive committee does not feel like assuming the responsibility of doing the things that are necessary to be done, and if the convention is called soon the farmers will have time to attend, the roads are good and everyone will enjoy an outing to Bismarck any way.

It is suggested the convention will follow announcement of the results of the state canvassing board.

Minot, N. D., July 17.—Penitentiary sentences totaling four years and a county jail sentence of one year were imposed on three convicted defendants in district court this forenoon by Judge John C. Lome. The sentences with one exception, were the maximum which could be imposed.

Al Moore, colored, convicted by a jury in district court late yesterday afternoon on a charge of possessing a prohibited drug (cocaine) was given a three year penitentiary sentence, this being the maximum penalty which could be imposed under the statute under which he was convicted. Moore, when brought before the bar for sentence, when asked if he had any legal reason to present why sentence should not be passed, made the assertion, "I'm not guilty."

The State Tax Payers Association will renew its campaign for an initiated law proposing a 25 percent cut in taxes in the state in the levies for 1923, with exceptions, it is announced by Dan R. Jones, Wahpeton, secretary. Petitions were received in Bismarck today.

"But let Finney tell the story of his narrow escape from death. He has written it, and some of his adventures around the world, to a Bismarck friend. Finney recently appeared on boxing card at Mandan, boxing with Jack Hoffman of that city.

"The Association held a meeting at Fargo on June 27th and 28th, 1924. It was the opinion of the members that taxes, in many communities, have become confiscatory. That taxes were taking all the revenue derived from real property and by taking all revenue produced the result is the confiscation of capital invested in land and other property.

"Men with money refuse to invest in our State fearing that North Dakota will deprive them of their property through high taxes.

"I was going on the manlift to the top of the elevator and I stepped off and proceeded to make my way across the obstructions to the windows which I had to take out in order to ascend to the roof, as I was installing lightning rods on all of the Occident elevators, when one of the spouts leading into an empty grain bin gave way just as I stepped on it and down I went to the bottom," wrote Finney.

Landed on All Fours
"I landed on all fours, more to the left side. Well, I only got a compound fracture of my left arm and a broken left rib and a badly crushed back and right leg. I'm at present confined in a private home at Hebrew, with a trained nurse at my bedside. I think I'll come all right in short order."

"Sailor Jack" Finney's trade is that of steeplejack, although he likes to box and has served in the navy. He has climbed some of the tallest buildings in the country, and recently worked atop the Stevens building in Chicago, several hundred feet high. The fall from the Antelope Elevator, he wrote, was his first.

Finney has sailed the seven seas and has been in most of the ports of the world. He also sought pugilistic fame, and was held amateur bantamweight champion of Brooklyn some 12 years ago. He also was a wrestler and a circus clown, being with a circus in South America, Australia and at Cape Town, South Africa. He also introduced the boxing game in the interior of Nicaragua, Columbia and other places in Central America. He also went through the experience of being "pinched" in Florida and made to work in a lumber camp near Tallahassee, Florida, where Martin Tabert, was killed.

Ship-wrecks also are listed in the experiences of the young man. Last March he was shipwrecked off the coast of Maryland, while on the oil tanker Louisiana. The ship sank gradually while on the bar and several of the crew of a revenue cutter lost their lives in an attempting rescue.

Finney was a sailor when the war broke out and his ship was pressed into service as a naval transport. He quit the sea in 1921, and he got about as far away from water as he could. Now, laid up in bed, he is thinking about the sea again, and figures he will go back eventually.

BEING CONSIDERED

Definite Campaign Is Launched to Force Change For 1928 Nomination

Chicago, July 17. (By the A. P.)—Concerted action by members of the Democratic national committee from a number of western and southern states in an endeavor to make the unit rule and the two-thirds majority inoperative in future conventions has advanced to the stage of formal interchange of views on the subject, a member of the committee revealed.

A committee member from one western state had prepared a formal declaration on the subject for submission to the proposed meeting of the national committee at Clarksburg, West Virginia, in August.

Under this resolution the committee would declare both rules contrary to the Democratic principles and recommend to all state bodies that plans for the convention of 1928 and thereafter be calculated on the basis of majority rule and with every delegate free, so far as binding party rules are concerned, to vote his own preference.

More than a fourth of the committee members have given assent to the proposition since the national convention adjourned a week ago, a leader in the move said today. Additional members have been sounded on the question and have promised to assist in bringing the resolution before the fall committee.

As a result of the conference the 20 men were divided into four teams. Each team contains as far as possible representatives of each denomination. One team left here yesterday morning, consisting of District Superintendent John Morange, of the M. E. church; Secretary M. R. Ziegler of the Church of the Brethren, Elgin, Illinois; Rev. G. P. Keeling, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Park River; Rev. P. E. Nystrom of Bismarck, Baptist; Col. Porter, missionary, and Ernest M. Halliday, secretary of the Congregational Church Extension Board of New York. The members will return to Bismarck Saturday and be assigned to pulpits in Bismarck and Mandan Sunday. On the first part of their journey in the southwestern part of the state they followed the Kildeer line of the Northern Pacific.

Rev. Morange, emphasizing the importance of the work, quoted Dr. L. C. Barnes of New York, secretary of the American Baptist Home Missionary Society, as saying that in the intermountain states "in fifteen-sixteens of the communities there is no question whatever of denominational competition, but a tremendous heed of denominational concentration."

A prominent South American, who arrived in Montevideo, from Santos, in an interview asserted the rebels at Sao Paulo apparently were in control and that the federal troops besieging the metropolis have been unable to dislodge them.

"I can state that the revolutionaries have been masters of the situation since the first moment," said the South American. "On the day of the outbreak, state president Dr. Campos was obliged to seek refuge in Rio Janiero. The rebels engaged in the fighting number about 20,000, not counting the large contingent of civilians who morally support the revolutionary movement.

"The reason no decisive action is being fought is that the government fears a big battle as it has no faith in its soldiers. It is afraid they will go over to the enemy any time. There is no doubt but what the rebels can gain possession of Santos when they wish to do so."

KIDNAP GIRLS
FROM AUTO

Bandit Trio Robs Men, Carries Girls Away

Milwaukee, Wis., July 17.—A bandit trio kidnapped two girls, twin sisters—after holding up and robbing their companion at the point of pistols, here today.

At 3 o'clock this morning the girls were found in a dazed condition on the south side and brought to central police station by a passing auto mobile driver.

One, it was found, had been attacked by two of the men. She was in a serious condition and was barely able to mumble her story to police officers.

The other, also was on the verge of collapse. She had not been attacked, although her clothing was torn to shreds in her fight with the three men.

The girls were riding with Erwin Nichols, 24 years old, and Herbert Brandt, 23 years old, when a large touring car drove up alongside their car. The trio commanded the bandit to stop, threatening to shoot.

Brandt halted his car and the three men then searched his pockets, taking $16. The girls were ordered to enter the bandit's vehicle and menaced with pistols when they hesitated and were finally seized and dragged into the bandit machine.

While one of the men stood guard over the girls, the other two ordered Brandt and Nichols to turn toward the city and drive away.

Three shots were fired at the young men and the bandits with the girls sped southward.

Brandt and Nichols drove to the nearest telephone and notified the sheriff's office.

MAKING FOUR TOURS

Will Visit All Corners of the State to Discern Religious Needs There

Four teams, representing various church denominations, will tour North Dakota to make a study of the religious situation, with especial reference to communities not now being reached and to those in which single church's need strengthening. At the conclusion of the tour the representatives on the four teams will hold a meeting and consider the situation from a broad angle, without particular reference to any denomination.

The interdenominational cooperation in this state is a part of a general movement among Protestant churches in the entire country in this regard. The present survey was considered at a meeting of 20 national and state leaders representing the Baptist, Congregational, Church of the Brethren, Methodist and Presbyterian communions, in Jamestown Tuesday, according to Rev. John Morange of this city. Rev. Charles E. Vermilyea of New York, formerly a Methodist superintendent in this state, who now is secretary of the Home Missions Council representing practically all of the Protestant denominations, conferred with the leaders.

As a result of the conference the 20 men were divided into four teams. Each team contains as far as possible representatives of each denomination. One team left here yesterday morning, consisting of District Superintendent John Morange, of the M. E. church; Secretary M. R. Ziegler of the Church of the Brethren, Elgin, Illinois; Rev. G. P. Keeling, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Park River; Rev. P. E. Nystrom of Bismarck, Baptist; Col. Porter, missionary, and Ernest M. Halliday, secretary of the Congregational Church Extension Board of New York. The members will return to Bismarck Saturday and be assigned to pulpits in Bismarck and Mandan Sunday. On the first part of their journey in the intermountain states they followed the Kildeer line of the Northern Pacific.

Rev. Morange, emphasizing the importance of the work, quoted Dr. L. C. Barnes of New York, secretary of the American Baptist Home Missionary Society, as saying that in the intermountain states "in fifteen-sixteens of the communities there is no question whatever of denominational competition, but a tremendous heed of denominational concentration."

Scattered thundershowers are in prospect in North Dakota today and tomorrow, with no general rain appearing in the forecast issued today by the weather bureau.

Bismarck scored one-tenth of an inch of rain in the day's period ending at 7 a. m. today—the only one of the 17 weather stations in the state to record rain. However, it was cloudy in most parts of the state and from 10 to 20 degrees cooler than for the previous few days.

The cool spell is about as valuable in preserving crops as rain, in the opinion of the weather official. O. W. Roberts, observer, believes that a large part of the crops, carefully put in, have enough moisture to mature, while the stubble in grain needs additional rain. With moist air, probable showers and cool weather the crop conditions generally are held favorable.

The shower in Bismarck sent the thermometer down, considerably. A much heavier shower fell a few miles south of Mandan yesterday afternoon, one traveling man reporting the road up muddy that he had difficulty in traveling over it without chains.

Local showers help to drive down the thermometer in this territory.

RAT PROBLEM
BEFORE MINOT

State Aid May BeAppealed
For in Fighting Them

Minot, N. D., July 17.—Minot's rat problem got before the city commission again when Will J. O'Rourke, secretary of the Minot Elks Lodge, told the body yesterday that unless some cooperation was extended by the city within a short time that he would be forced to take the matter up with the state board of health.

Recalling Minot's experience with the sewage disposal plant, which was constructed after the state board of health issued specific orders that failure to act would result in the state stepping in, it is not out of the realm of possibility that the state health department would take command in fighting rats, were formal complaint made.

Mr. O'Rourke called attention to the fact that one institution is helpless in fighting the rat pest; that only by a concerted city-wide activity can rats be eliminated.

Major W. M. Smart informed Mr. O'Rourke that 200 pounds of rat poison had been ordered and that the rats of the city were due for a fatal lunch very shortly.

For North Dakota: Mostly fair to night and Friday, except possibly scattered thundershowers Friday. Warmer east and central portions.

General Weather Conditions

The pressure is high over the Plains States and along the Pacific coast and it is low over the southern Plateau states. Precipitation occurred in the Great Lakes region, in Missouri, eastern South Dakota, at Bismarck and at a few places in the extreme Northwest. Cool weather prevails throughout the northern states.

Troops to Fight

Montevideo, Uruguay, July 17.—Fighting between the Brazilian government forces and insurrectionists at Sao Paulo is continuing without advantage to either side, according to authoritative advice received here early today. Recent arrivals from Santos declared that port is virtually closed and the situation extremely grave.

A prominent South American, who arrived in Montevideo, from Santos, in an interview asserted the rebels at Sao Paulo apparently were in control and that the federal troops besieging the metropolis have been unable to dislodge other property.

"The cut in taxes does not effect taxes levied for special improvements, interest on bonds, sinking funds, fixed levies etc. The cut is very moderate but it does assure those who wish to invest that our taxes will not be higher; that we are actually moving toward lower taxes."

"I can state that the revolutionaries have been masters of the situation since the first moment," said the South American. "On the day of the outbreak, state president Da Campos was obliged to seek refuge in Rio Janiero. John Morane of New York, formerly a Methodist superintendent in this state, who now is secretary of the Home Missions Council representing practically all of the Protestant denominations, conferred with the leaders.

As a result of the conference the men were divided into four teams. Each team contains as far as possible representatives of each denomination.

One team left here yesterday morning, consisting of District Superintendent John M. Morane of the M. E. church; Secretary M. R. Ziegler of the Church of the Brethren, Elgin, Illinois; Rev. G. P. Keeling, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Park River; Rev. P. E. Nystrom of Bismarck, Baptist; Col. Porter, missionary, and Ernest M. Halliday, secretary of the Congregational Church Extension Board of New York. The members will return to Bismarck Saturday and be assigned to pulpits in Bismarck and Mandan Sunday. On the first part of their journey in the southwestern part of the state they followed the Killdeer line of the Northern Pacific.

Scattered thundershowers are in prospect in North Dakota today and tomorrow, with no general rain appearing in the forecast issued today by the weather bureau.

Bismarck scored one-tenth of an inch of rain in the day's period ending at 7 a. m. today—the only one of the 17 weather stations in the state to record rain. However, it was cloudy in most parts of the state and from 10 to 20 degrees cooler than for the previous few days.

The cool spell is about as valuable in preserving crops as rain, in the opinion of the weather officials. O. W. Roberts, observer, believes that a large part of the crops, carefully put in, have enough moisture to mature, while the stubble in grain needs additional rain. With moist air, probable showers and cool weather the crop conditions generally are held favorable.

The shower in Bismarck sent the thermometer down considerably. A much heavier shower fell a few miles south of Mandan yesterday afternoon, one traveling man reporting the road to muddy that he had difficulty in traveling over it without chains.

Scattered thundershowers are among its greatest assets, Mr. Beatty declared. "Without that winter we should not be able to grow the hard wheat on which so much of the prosperity of the Canadian west depends, and which every miller in the United States desires for his choicest flour. Without that winter we should not have the fur-bearing animals and the fur trade which for 300 years has been one of Canada's basic industries. Without that winter we could not haul so economically as we do the products of our forests to our lumber and pulp mills. And last but not least, without that winter we could not have the virile

BRIDGE PAVING PROJECT STILL IS UNSETTLED

Highway Body Confronted With Opinion That Bridge
Money Cannot Be Used

OTHER FACTORS IN IT

Bismarck Citizens Continue to Voice Demand for Equality
in Road Projects

The State Highway Commission has not settled the question of whether or not a contract will be let for paving the Bismarck Mandan road from the west end of the Missouri River bridge to a point near the Northern Pacific railroad east of Mandan. There is, according to Chief Engineer Black, a legal question as to whether state bridge fund can be used in paving that road. Under the proposed plan Morton county would pay one-sixth of the cost, the federal government half, and the remainder would come out of the state bridge fund.

The highway commission may meet tomorrow to consider the matter, the chief engineer said. Attorney General Shaffer said no opinion had been asked of his office as to the legality of the use of the state bridge fund money, but that a couple of years ago an opinion was given from the Attorney General's office by Assistant Attorney General Remondet to the effect that this money could not be used without specific appropriations by the legislature. Under this opinion the present plan of paving will not be carried out.

The question also has been raised by Bismarck citizens carrying out their announced determination of demanding approaches to the new bridge from the southwest that if the highway is paved as a part of the bridge project provisions must also be made for the southwest road reaching to this bluff. This, they believe, would greatly improve the avenues of approach to the bridge. By extending the lateral road, which would connect up with the St. Anthony and St. Yates road, as a part of the bridge project, the utility of the bridge would be increased and the entire matter solved with the least possible expense to local taxpayers in the belief of local men. It is probable that a mass meeting of business men of Bismarck will be called soon to thresh out the whole road problem.

The local citizens are joined with St. Yates and other citizens between Bismarck and that place in demanding incorporation of the so-called river road as a part of the state federal highway system. They point out that the recent state highway map of the highway commission omits this road, which has been for forty years a main artery of traffic serving a large number of people desiring a direct route to Bismarck and Mandan. Certain interests in Mandan, it is charged, seek to direct this traffic over a route to western school

COURT TO HEAR BONDING CASE

Will Review Action of the Secretary of State

The supreme court will grant an early hearing in the matter in which a review is asked of the action of the Secretary of State in declining to file petitions for a vote on a constitutional amendment providing for a $6,000,000 bond issue to aid in reimbursing depositors of closed banks and rewriting the Guaranty Fund laws, according to announcement of the supreme court. The date of the hearing is July 22nd, at 10 a.m.

The petition filed with the supreme court, cited the constitutional provision saying actions of the Secretary of State in such matters should be reviewed by the court.

SHAVER TALKS ON INDUSTRIES

Addresses Rotary Club at Its Luncheon Today

The Rotary Club at its luncheon this noon had the pleasure of hearing Attorney General George Shaffer talk on "Certain Phases of State Owned Industries." He took up the position of the taxpayer and compared him to a stockholder in a corporation, pointed out the principal similarities, but stated that the chief distinction between a North Dakota taxpayer and a stockholder in a corporation lay in the fact that the taxpayer is interested in state owned industries in practical perpetuity. He traced the state ownership of private enterprises from House Bill 44 down to the present time, discussing briefly the methods industry entered by our state, and concluded with a statement of what state ownership had cost to date and the inevitable tax burden yet to come unless through a miracle our endeavors reach the apparently unattainable goal of a profit.

Upon the occasion of J. L. Bell's birthday, Bert Finney after a fervent oration granted Mr. Bell the questionable privilege of editing the Rotarian Organ, the "Buffalo Horn" for one week, but hemmed his grant with so many restrictions that it is feared the privilege is valueless. ## HEAT WAVE IN STATE BROKEN DURING NIGHT

No Weather Stations Report ing Here, However, Tell of Rain in Last Day

CROP CONDITIONS

Although a cool breeze arising during the night carried the mercury down to a record temperature for the season here, no rain was reported from any of the state weather stations during the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. today. Some weather stations reported "clouds at 7 a.m. today, but in most parts of the state it was clear and warm. The mercury took its nearest jump to 100 yesterday, reaching 99 at Fessenden and Lisbon, and it was above 99 at Bismarck, Ellendale, Jamestown, Napoleon and Williston, the highest mark recorded in Bismarck was 99.

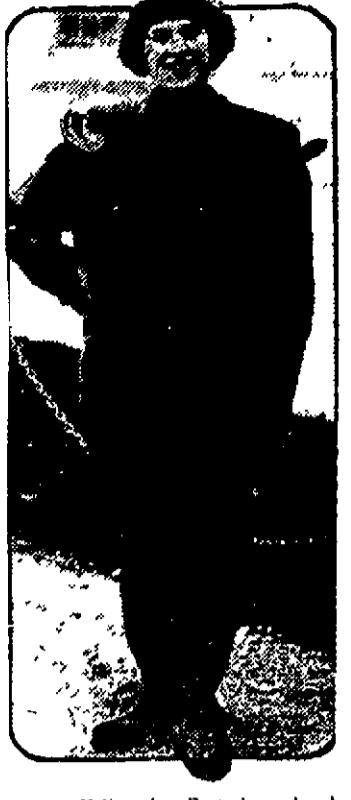

The weather bureau predicts about the same weather for tonight, except that it is expected to be some what cooler.

The North Dakota Corn and Wheat Region Summary, issued to day by the weather bureau for the past week, reports favorable crop weather although some sections need rain. The report is as follows:

Favorable weather for all crops prevails throughout the State, although some sections need rain. Spring wheat is mostly headed or heading and no reports of black rust have been received. Spring rye is ripening and some is nearly ready to harvest. Barley, oats and speltz are heading and a good to excellent crop is expected. Corn is somewhat backward but generally clean. Potatoes are good to excellent and mostly in blossom. Flax is excellent, much in full stage. Haying is well advanced and pasture ranges and livestock are excellent.

The heat wave was further broken by a shower which fell in Bismarck this afternoon.

TAX APPEAL BOARD FORMED

Former North Dakotan Is Named Chairman

Washington, July 16.—Machinery created by the new tax law for adjustment of tax claims was formally set in motion today with the formation of the board of tax appeals.

The 12 members already named elected Charles D. Hamel of North Dakota as chairman and proceeded to work out rules of procedure governing the disposition of claims which in the past have aggregated as high as a half-billion dollars a year.

Present plans contemplate division of the board into committees of three, each committee to be assigned headquarters in some city central to the community from which its cases come. Taxpayers thus will be spared the necessity of making trips to Washington to handle their claims.

Hamel's home formerly was in Grafton but he has been in Washington several years.

The Red Star," New Book, Deals With No. Dakota

The Red Star, a story of North Dakota, a book now ready for publication by the Stratford company, was written by Irene Lenhart whose husband F. A. Lenhart, is the brother of Mayor A. P. Lenhart. Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Lenhart live in Provo, Utah.

Reviews of the book describe it as told in colorful language and embracing a realistic plot. The story relates the history of Jane, a southern girl, last of an old family who learns at the death of her father that her home is mortgaged and she is penniless. She refuses a home with her friends, for she wishes to be independent, and becomes a teacher for a North Dakota country school.

In the home where she stays she meets Steven Fjarr, whose quaint ways and kind ways win her heart. They are married and go to live on a prairie homestead, where they light fire, drought and all kinds of

ADVERTISING IS WELDING U. S. MARKET

E. T. Meredith Explains How
Universal Sales Made Possible Through Publicity

London, July 17 (A. P.)—An address by E. T. Meredith, of Des Moines, Iowa, on "How Advertising has Welded the United States Market," was this afternoon read before the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, now in session in London.

Mr. Meredith, in the beginning, reviewed the barriers that exist in America to uniform buying customs throughout the 48 states. He referred to the geographical barriers found in mountain chains; the different climatic conditions in winter, for instance, between Florida on the south and the Canadian border on the north; the great distances north, east, south and west; the distribution of population, 32,000,000 people on farms, 45,000,000 in cities and 29,000,000 in towns, and the question of sectional, industrial and agricultural production.

"Nevertheless," Mr. Meredith declared, "the use of locally manufactured products made from locally raw materials is nation-wide, and this has been accomplished by advertising. Nationally-known and nationally-used products have been advertised throughout the nation, and the heads of these concerns will tell you that universal sales would not have been possible without this publicity."

To explain what national advertising meant in dollars and cents the speaker related the sums of money spent yearly by well known firms dealing in automobiles, foodstuffs, clothing, etc. In conclusion he said, "I hope I have made clear to you that in the first place nearly all of the natural conditions in the United States work against national distribution of products and that the line of least resistance, the easy way out as it were, would have developed in the United States not a single buying unit as we find it today. We would have had a number of local or sectional communities to a large extent sufficient unto themselves, each going its own way with its own customs, living conditions, and the use of commodities necessary for its well being. But far-sighted men saw what might have been considered as definite trade barriers only as trade problems to be solved in some way. To solve the problem, they, with almost no exception, turned to national advertising to establish national consumption of their product in vast country. The wise and intelligent use of advertising in all its forms has succeeded in its purpose of welding the United States market."

TESTING USE OF LIGNITE

St. Paul, July 17.—Methods of pulverizing lignite coal, tested by the Great Northern railway here to devise practical means for the extensive use of lignite along its lines in North Dakota and eastern Montana particularly, have been highly successful, it was said.

The apparatus tested pulverizes the fuel as it is used and thus eliminates storage of pulverized fuel, which has been considered impractical because of the danger of explosion. Great Northern engineers declined to analyze the probable results generally of the successful test, but fuel experts declared that if the method proves practicable, it undoubtedly will come into wide use in the northwest, thus resulting in increased development of the lignite industry.

London, July 17 (By the A. The French members also expressed their joint conviction that the economic unity of Germany could not be restored until the proposed loan was under written.

A statement was made before the French officials entering a meeting of the committee which was formed by the conference to deal with the authority of the reparations commission in respect to the action to be taken in event of possible default of Germany in the execution of the Dawes scheme.

PROTESTS VOTE IN WISHEK IN LAST PRIMARY

Test Case Planned For Those Unable to Read and Write English Language

It is understood that the villagers will maintain the island as a model farm.

Protest against recording the result of the vote in Wishek precinct, McIntosh county, was to be filed with the state canvassing board, canvassing the result of the June 25 primary in the state, today, according to F. O. Hellstrom of this city. The protest, he said, would allege on behalf of Mrs. Margretha Becker and others that the vote was fraudulent because the election officials declined to permit her to vote for the reason that she could not read the English language.

The filing of the protest with the canvassing board was formal, Mr. Hellstrom said, and action would be brought in the district court of McIntosh county to have the vote of the precinct thrown out.

He said he understood the election officials did not as the law provides offer to allow certain relatives to assist persons unable to read and write.

The canvassing board, which met today, included the secretary of state, superintendent of public instruction, Roy Frazier as chairman of the Republican central committee, and Attorney-General Shaffer, named by the Governor to act in some respects for the clerk of the supreme court, absent from the city. Since the Nonpartisan League party displaced the Democratic party two years ago as second party in the state, and it has no chairman, there was lacking on the board the chairman of the second political party in the state, according to M. W. Duffy, deputy secretary of state.

MARKET NEWS

WHEAT GOES ON UPWARD IN EARLY DEALS

Continued Reports of Bad Crop Conditions in Canada Are Received

Chicago, July 17 (By the A. P.) —With the Winnipeg market up and with rains in Canada apparently receiving scant attention wheat averaged higher in prices today in early dealings. Chicago experts in Canada continued to report much damage. Opening prices which varied from unchanged figures to one-eighth cent higher. September $1.27 to $1.27 1/2 and December $1.29 1/4 to $1.30, were followed by a moderate setback for most delivered and then by rapid fluctuations and active trading within the range of about two cents.

Subsequently all deliveries here rose to a new high price record for the season. The impulse came from further sensational Canadian reports and an estimate that the three prairie provinces would yield 200,000,000 to 250,000,000 less than last year. The close was nervous, but despite heavy profit-taking was two cents to 4 1/2 cents net higher. September $1.29 to $1.29 1/4 and December $1.31 7/8 to $1.32.

URGES CHANGES IN CONDUCT OF HAIL BUREAU

Auditor Suggests New Methods With Reference to Tax From the Counties

GETS COOPERATION

Receives Aid From the Department in Making Audit, Says O. B. Lund

Recommendations that uniform rules be made regarding collections and remittances to the state hail insurance fund from counties, and that a representative of the department go over the tax accounts of various counties are made by O. B. Lund, an accountant employed by the state board of auditors, in a report submitted today on the state hail insurance department. The audit covers the period from the time the present department was established in 1919.

The original law did not make it clear as to the collections and remittances to the hail department of penalty and interest on the 1919 and 1920 hail tax, Mr. Lund said. "From some counties," he added, "full penalty and interest, as is applied to other taxes for these years, has apparently been collected and remitted to the state hail insurance department, while other counties have made partial remittances for penalty and interest, and other counties no remittance whatever for the penalty and interest on hail tax levied for those years. A uniform rule should be laid down, if possible, covering the collection of penalty and interest for those years, instead of taking what is offered by some counties and permitting other counties to pass without remitting any penalty and interest whatever."

Hail Tax Record

With reference to the hail tax record the auditor says: "The hail insurance department has a complete detailed record of the hail insurance tax levies and collections with the various counties. This record shows that there are a few counties that have remitted hail insurance taxes in excess of the levy shown by the abstract of tax list, and in some of these cases the hail department has added an arbitrary charge without basic information for entering same. It has come to my observation in the past that county officers have made errors in apportioning and remitting state taxes, and in fairness to the taxpayers these items should be gone over at the counties to determine where the discrepancy arises. There are also some counties that are considerably behind in their hail tax payments. The state hail insurance department makes an effort to straighten some of these matters by correspondence, but my experience has been that it is difficult to induce a great many of the county auditors to assist in straightening such matters without going to the county, and I believe with the amount of money involved it would be good business for the department to have a representative go over the tax accounts, with some of the counties at least, to get the tax accounts straightened out to agree with their records."

The auditor says that since there appeared to have been no audit made of the department since its organization, it was necessary to go back to March 1, 1919. The hail insurance department, like many new state departments organized in the past, started without a systematic method of keeping account of their business, depending largely on the state auditor and state treasurer to keep a record of their cash accounts," says the auditor. "A general ledger has never been kept by the department and many of the liabilities are not shown on their books."

With regard to the hail losses of 1923, paid on 80 per cent basis, Mr. Lund suggests that the legislature could appropriate $900,000 from the surplus fund to make up the deficit, without impairing the original surplus fund derived from the flat tax levy.

Get Cooperation

The department's acreage and loss reports, he said, were very complete, and he did not find it necessary to go into an audit of them. He added that the hail insurance department and assistants afforded him every facility in his work.

The balance sheet shows for the five years the total flat and indemnity tax collections charged counties amounted to $22,764,588.17; the total hail losses paid $16,757,302.99, the amount of tax charge exceeding hail losses $4,007,265.36.

of the Canadian Army in the great war, has come to identify with the Canadian race. So long as Canada has its winter, so long will Canada be ready and able to bear the white man's burden."

Must Be Worth While

The most important thing in any selling campaign is that the merchandise offered shall be worth selling, the speaker continued. "There in lies the strength of Canada's position. Canada has had the confidence to advertise and to keep on advertising, because she knows that she has something worth while to offer. She has good agricultural land with markets for what that land can produce; she has almost unlimited natural resources in mines and forests; she has ample power at moderate cost for industrial purposes; she has respect for law and order, and she has a climate in which white men can make homes. With such assets, Canada has no reason for hiding her light reeds of which would go directly to the Highway Commission for expenditure on the roads in the state, is to place the cost of road construction on those whom it should be placed on, the motorists. It is only fair that the burden of road costs should be borne by the person who most uses the roads.

Under these conditions it is grossly unfair that the farmer who uses gasoline in his tractor out in the field, should be taxed for road improvement, and the sponsor of the gas tax realize this. They feel that a gas tax for road improvement should be levied but they also feel that certain gasoline users should be exempted from paying the tax. They feel that farmers and others using gasoline for power should be included among those exemptions, and they have outlined a system whereby these people could, by certifying that the gasoline they buy is for tractor or stationary engine power only, be exempted from paying the tax.

She and her sons contributed greatly to the success of the performance. The court room scene, too, brought forth the opportunity for a diversity of action and humor that added greatly to the play. It brought forth, too, one of the most appealing situations created in any play, with "Lightnin'" standing before the judge in his soldier's uniform, listening to the hard words of a divorce complaint against him, and calling forth all of his broken will-power to help "Mother" Jones win her freedom from him. It ended, too, as one would have it end, with "Lightnin'" forgiven and unchanged, still apparently indifferent to the solicitude of those about him, still glorying in his shallow boastfulness.

So generous was the applause that Mr. Jefferson thanked the audience at the end of the second act, and the hand clapping grew when he admitted that his prize story of having driven a swarm of bees across the plains in the dead of winter—and losing only two bees, was not true.

Seventeen characters appeared in "Lightnin'." Mrs. Jones was played acceptably by Helen Phillips, and a well rounded cast added to the play. "Lightnin'" had a record of 129 consecutive performances in New York, it is a play that will live long.

NO 'GAS' TAX FOR FARMERS

Planned to Exempt Them, Says Chief Engineer Black

That farmers using gasoline in tractors and others using it as a fuel for stationary engine power would be unfairly paying for improvements on roads if a gasoline tax, to be used exclusively for road construction and maintenance was to be levied, was branded as a falsehood by W. G. Black in a statement issued by him today.

The Chief Engineer's statement follows:

"The idea of a gas tax, the proportion of which would go directly to the Highway Commission for expenditure on the roads in the state, is to place the cost of road construction on those whom it should be placed on, the motorists. # ADVERTISING IS WELDING U. S. MARKET

E. T. Meredith Explains How
Universal Sales Made Possible Through Publicity

London, July 17 (A. P.)—An address by E. T. Meredith, of Des Moines, Iowa, on "How Advertising has Welded the United States Market," was this afternoon read before the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, now in session in London.

Mr. Meredith, in the beginning, reviewed the barriers that exist in America to uniform buying customs throughout the 48 states. He referred to the geographical barriers, found in mountain chains; the different climatic conditions in winter, for instance, between Florida on the south and the Canadian border on the north; the great distances northeast, south and west, the distribution of population, 32,000,000 people on farms, 45,000,000 in cities and 29,000,000 in towns, and the question of sectional, industrial and agricultural production.

"Nevertheless," Mr. Meredith declared, "the use of locally manufactured products made from locally raw materials is nation-wide, and this has been accomplished by advertising. Nationally-known and nationally-used products have been advertised throughout the nation and the heads of these concerns will tell you that universal sales would not have been possible without this publicity."

To explain what national advertising means in dollars and cents the speaker related the sums of money spent yearly by well known firms dealing in automobiles, foodstuffs, clothing, etc. In conclusion he said:
"I hope I have made clear to you that in the first place nearly all of the natural conditions in the United States work against national distribution of products and that the easy way out as it were would have developed in the United States not a single buying unit as we find it today. We would have had a number of local or sectional communities to a large extent sufficient unto themselves each going its own way with its own customs, living conditions, and the use of commodities necessary for its well being.
But far-sighted men saw what might have been considered as definite trade barriers only as trade problems to be solved in some way. To solve the problem, they, with almost no exception, turned to national advertising to establish national consumption of their product in a vast country. The wise and intelligent use of advertising in all its forms has succeeded in its purpose of welding the United States market."

TESTING USE OF LIGNITE

St. Paul, July 17.—Methods of pulverizing lignite coal, tested by the Great Northern railway here to devise practical means for the extensive use of lignite along its lines in North Dakota and eastern Montana particularly, have been highly successful, it was said.

The apparatus tested pulverizes the fuel as it is used and thus eliminates storage of pulverized fuel, which has been considered impractical because of the danger of explosion.

Great Northern engineers declined to analyze the probable results generally of the successful test, but fuel experts declared that if the method proves practicable, it undoubtedly will come into wide use in the northwest, thus resulting in increased development of the lignite industry.

GERMAN LOAN INSISTED ON

Must Be Condition Precedent to Holding Dawes Plan
in Action

London, July 17 (By the A. P.)— French members of the committee of the inter-allied conference dealing with the authority of the reparations commission announced this afternoon their determination to insist on taking up by bankers of the proposed loan to Germany as a condition precedent to the recognition that the Dawes plan is in effect.

The French members also expressed their joint conviction that the economic unity of Germany could not be restored until the proposed loan was under written.

A statement was made before meeting of the committee which was formed by the conference to

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER

(Established 1873)

BIG BUSINESS FOR FARMERS

The announcement made in Chicago that a cooperative farmers' marketing agency will acquire control of the five largest grain firms in the United States is the greatest step made in the advancement of cooperative marketing among the grain farmers of the country. The plan contemplates a corporation capitalized at $25,000,000, its business being to handle grains and seeds. The official announcement added also that the present heads of the largest elevator companies agreed to run their elevators for five years and instruct the farmers' representatives in the methods of operation.

The plan, though on a huge scale, appears to be the soundest cooperative marketing scheme yet advanced for the benefit of the grain farmer. It is not likely that the elevator companies would turn over their properties to the new organization if they did not wish it to be a success; indeed they will retain such an obligation on them for a time that it will be to their interest to see that the cooperative company is a success. It would indeed be an inspiring monument to the farmers of the nation if they could own, control and successfully direct the greatest grain marketing organization in the United States, and it would doubtless pay them handsomely if well managed.

That the proposed grain marketing organization is fostered by the American Farm Bureau, which already has handled many big problems of the farmer in a business-like fashion, bespeaks well for the possibilities of the agency.

AROUND THE CONFERENCE TABLE

High hopes will be entertained of the present inter-allied conference now in session in London. Many times previously the hopes of the world have been raised as a conference has gathered in Europe for the specific purpose of ironing out the problems of the nations, and each time there has been failure. Old-world jealousies, the exigencies of the political situation in the various countries, lack of vision and selfishness have been material factors in preventing the accomplishment of a plan which would put Germany and the rest of Europe on a sound basis.

At the present inter-allied conference, however, there is something tangible to be considered. The Dawes reparation plan as worked out by experts is before the delegates. It already has the endorsement of the leading statesmen of Europe. It offers a method by which Germany can be rehabilitated, can pay reparations and would settle the vexing problems which have brought an uncertainty about the future in all European countries.

With the French and British governments favorable to the Dawes plan, and Germany leaning toward it, there is hope that the work of American experts may be translated into effective action.

SWEETS

If you could get all the candy store and other confectionery clerks in the country together in a convention, the attendance would be 350,000. Another 150,000 make the stuff. There's roughly one person serving sweetmeats for every 200 of us.

Out of every $1 you spend for food, 6 cents goes for sugar in one form or another. The refiners ferreted out this information.

Maybe it seems too much. But it's claimed that sugar, costing only 6 per cent of the nation's food bill, furnishes 13 per cent of the "total energy or fuel value of all foods consumed in the United States.

There is as much physical stimulation in two lumps of sugar as in an old-time alcoholic cocktail. This is scientific fact. No such claim is made as regards mental exhilaration. Some carry lumps of sugar to pep them up when fagged.

DELAYED

War is the greatest obstacle to progress.

France and England again are negotiating to build the much-needed tunnel under the English Channel, to connect the two countries by rail. This project would have been completed years ago if it hadn't been for military reasons.

War occasionally seems to hasten progress. It doesn't, on the average, though it may occur at the right moment to credit for achievements due to materialization anyway. World War gave us fast airplanes. What good are they? We need cheap, safe planes, not speed.

COOL

A woman can dress modestly for the street so her whole outfit, including shoes, will weigh only 28 ounces. If a man wears less than four and a half ounces of clothes, the police man is apt to send him home. Discovered by a Boston reporter. Either outfit costs over $60.

Men get a raw deal in hot weather. After watching some of the semi-stripped women tripping along coolly on the streets, a perspiring man wonders if he isn't ethically entitled to walk abroad in pajamas. Equality for sexes!

RED

Hysterical anti-Red activity is waning, reports American Civil Liberties Union. That's apparent. The day may even return when people can speak their minds in public, before crowds, without fear of interference by police or self-appointed guardians of Uncle Sam.

Oration is the radical's safety valve. That's all most of them want to do—talk. No real danger, in our republic, before the safety valve of free speech is tied down. Average "radical" is just a volcano of words.

THE TRUTH AT LAST

In an effort to undo the mischief wrought by Kansas politicians full page advertisements are appearing in the big eastern dailies setting forth the merits of Kansas as a place in which to live and to do business. Special stress is placed on the advantages which the Sunflower state offers to farmers. Nebraska and Iowa have been compelled to follow a similar course.

The advertisements tell a vastly different story from that which the duly elected representatives of Kansas have been telling in congress and in newspaper interviews for the past three years. It is these misrepresentatives who have made the present advertising campaign necessary.

The New York Times, which this week carried one of these full page advertisements at a large expense to a little group of Kansas newspapers, comments on the circumstances as follows:

The fiction that the middle west and the northwest are filled with millions of enraged and despairing farmers has been sedulously put about for more than a year. The signs are that it has been much overdone. The farmers themselves are beginning to resent it. They don't take to the pictures of the west as a land where the banks are all going broke, the agricultural population is ruined itself and is ruining all the rest and the soil is being left uncultivated.

The western states still like to represent themselves as inviting fields for outside capital. They have not left off desiring to proclaim the opportunities which their rich lands offer to good farming. Latterly they have even begun to advertise their great attractions.

The Times points out that.

The western farmer is by no means a down-and-outer. He protests that he is an up-and-comer. Naturally, he has been willing to play the political game for all that there was in it. He did not openly object when the politicians in congress who pretended to speak for him insisted that he was a discredited bankrupt who must be helped out of a hole in the treasury. If others were getting government subsidies, the western farmers were not adverse to getting one for themselves, if it could be worked under some disguise or other. But now that some hoped and devices have turned out to be illusory, the farmers are going back to farming again, displaying more of the spirit which has made them hitherto the typically independent-minded and self-reliant citizens of the United States.

They have reason to take courage from recent changes in the agricultural outlook. Tricky and insincere politics has failed the farmer, but nature and economic law now promise to do him a good turn. The price of wheat at Chicago has gone up 10 cents within a week. So good an authority as Professor David Friday predicts that by the autumn wheat will be selling at $1.25. If dollar wheat saved us from Bryan in 1896, dollar-and-a-quarter wheat ought to save us from the worst consequences of demagogues and disturbers of the peace this year.

And the farmers are not so stupid as not to know whence their help comes. "It was not from hambugging tariff taxes on farm products. It was not from applying the quack remedy of reduced freight rates on agricultural shipments. It was not from the labors or machinations of the farm bloc in congress. All the bills that were to work the salvation of the farmer fell by the wayside. The trumpeters of the McNary-Haugen measure cried to all and sundry that no other plan could make the price of wheat bulge. But the much touted nostrum was discarded, yet the price of wheat at once shot up."

Attention is called to the work of General Dawes in the interest of the farmer, in the statement that he is the man who actually had done more for the farmer than all the northern and air-beaters in congress put together. Not Senator Capper or Senator Johnson, not the McNary-Haugen twins, not even the loud-sounding senator from Wisconsin did the business, but General Dawes.

Tom Sims says

"Take a chance for ten cents and win a lamp!"

That was the sign that Mister Bunny saw first thing when he and Ma. Bunny and the children came to Happy Go Lucky Park to spend the day.

"That's the very thing!" said Miss Bunny to herself. "If I win a lamp I can give it to Ma for her birthday tomorrow and it will only cost ten cents. Then I will have all my money left to show the children a good time today. I can take them on the merry-go-round six times apiece, and the roller coaster and everything. I do believe my troubles are at an end."

Out loud he said, "Here Ma, you and the children sit down here on the grass and wait for me. I have an errand to do, but I'll be back in a minute."

"All right, Ben," said Mrs. Bunny. "It's nice and shady and we're all tired after our walk in the sun. But don't be too long because we want to have a good time."

He slipped around the corner and there he was, right at the stand where it said "Take a chance and win a lamp for 10 cents."

"How do you do it?" he said to Nick.

"Well, you pay me ten cents," said Nick, "and I let you draw a card. Each card has a red number on it. Then I turn this big wheel around and if it stops on your number, you get a chance to be a lamp."

"How do you do it?" he said to Nick.

No matter how big a telephone booth, it is hard to get numbers in it.

Some parents worry about keeping the kids in clothes and others about keeping the children in autos.

An Oasis at Last

FABLES ON HEALTH

PRE-NATAL DIET

When Mrs. Jones of Anytown was anticipating her first baby she had a long consultation with the family doctor on diet, exercise and other questions.

"One thing is certain," the doctor told her, "and that is the necessity of a well-balanced and mixed diet. The diet should contain a mixture of fats, proteins, minerals and carbohydrates. By all means, drink plenty of water."

"In the early days, when nausea is likely to be a disturbing factor, it is best to dispense with three large meals a day and substitute a half-dozen small ones. The medical world has discovered the old saying that an expectant mother has to eat for two. She has to do nothing of the sort, and eating foods that would be likely to disturb the stomach is silly."

"In the later days, when motherhood is near, red meats should be eaten not more than once a day, while fish, eggs and meat should not be eaten every day, due to the protein content."

"On the other hand, fruits, vegetables—particularly vegetables of the leafy variety—help build up the mineral supply which is needed."

What do you think she has gotten into her quixotic brain now? As soon as I arrived I found a note asking me to come directly to her. (By the way, she has a very good service at the Plaza. These moving picture queens have more money to spend nowadays than the real ones, and I believe the diadems they wear are even more costly than the crowns which are placed on the heads of continental royalty.)

"I am so glad to see you, Sydne," she said. "I want to tell all about everything. You know I made a trip east between pictures to find out if Jack is really flirting with that Mrs. Atherton. You know I met her at the reception given for me in Albany."

"I didn't like her; neither did she like me, and I'm not going to have Jack Prescott break the heart of that nice wife of his, just for some red-headed vamp."

"That's interesting, isn't it, Jack? Thoroughly modern, I should say, when the mother of a man's illegitimate child takes up the cudgel for election as president, they contend, is inspired by the same motive and is identical in intent with klan requirements. The klan, however, it is admitted, carries this limitation appears to have proven a true prophet for once.

In opposing direct mention of the klan in his party's platform, he maintained that the emphasis and importance which such action would attach to the klan would be the biggest factor in perpetuating it or even in adding to its strength. Subsequent events seem to confirm this contention.

In their new drive for membership, klanmen are quoting George Washington as the first and foremost authority in bearing fruit.

Reports from the south and west are that klanmen, under the stimulus of the advertising given the organization by the New York convention, are renewing organization efforts and that greater numbers of recruits than ever before enrolled in a similar time have been listed with in the past ten days.

At Richmond, Va., on July 4, one of the largest "naturalization" ceremonies ever staged under the flaming cross was carried out before an audience estimated at 30,000.

New Jersey, West Virginia, South Carolina, Indiana, Kansas and other southern and western states report a recrudescence of the klan movement, all of which is declared to have been directly due to the anti-klan activity brought to a head in the fight on the Democratic platform.

Put, none but Americans, on guard tonight, as containing the klan viewpoint, which they insist is merely a demand for Americanism as the first and supreme requirement for all posts of public trust.

Also, the banner set up by the constitution against any native-born Americans being eligible to election as president, they contend, is inspired by the same motive and is identical in intent with klan requirements. The klan, however, it is admitted, carries this limitation into all state and federal offices and would add a religious as well as citizenship barrier.

The extent to which klan influence and activities will enter into the coming campaign, scouts reporting here predict, has not been adequately estimated by even the most cynical political prognosticator.

Perhaps, because of the superheated atmosphere in this city during recent weeks, this is a distorted view. But the politically wise say that the klan movement just now resembles the sweep of Know Nothingism back in the early 50's, which reached extremes of bitterness and vindictiveness not yet paralleled in the klan situation.

The blistered heel which brought death to Calvin Coolidge Jr., from septic poisoning, was received in a game of tennis which he and his elder brother John played just after completing plans for their summer vacation.

The boys' visit with their parents at the White House, following the close of the school year at Mercersburg Academy, where John was graduated in June, was to be followed by a six weeks' stay at Camp Devens, Mass. There, they were counting on having one rousing good time until late in August, when they were to return to Washington for another little "home visit" before returning to school. Calvin Jr. was to return to Mercersburg for his senior year, while John is slated to enter Amherst in September.

One disgruntled Democrat at the New York convention, after the eightieth futile ballot had been cast, remarked to any and all who cared to hear:

"This party sure did pick the right embalm! No, not a donkey—a plain jackass!"

Simple food and more raw fruit would be of immense benefit to the teeth, says an official of the British Dental Association.

THE NEW WAY OF DOING IT

By Albert Apple

In 1868 Nicholas M. Bell stood on the platform in Tammany Hall and placed in nomination Horatio Seymour as Democratic candidate for president.

"I was 26 years old at the time," Bell reminisces. "It took me 30 days to get to New York from Salem, Oregon, where I was a merchant."

Bell has lived to see an American in a steel flying machine cross the continent between dawn and darkness of one day. Quite a contrast with making it in a month.

You will see similar startling changes if you live as long as Bell. Speed is our generation's goal. Contentment was more the goal when Bell crossed the continent in 1868. Of course, he'd have gone faster if he could.

Time is a quicksand, swallowing everything. America's oldest shoe shop passed out of existence—the famous boot and shoemaking factory founded by James Benedict in Connecticut in 1762, and conducted for generations by his descendants.

Benedict's New Canaan shoes were famous all over the country. They were hand-made and sold at wholesale as high as $8.33 a pair, before the Civil War, back when prices were low.

About 30 years ago machine competition began to prove too much for hand-made footwear. The Benedicts held on. Now they quit, go out of business.

Mr. Moon's Morning

It was almost morning. Such a beautiful, clear morning as it was, and though later on in the day it would be warm, it was cool and fresh in the early hours.

Soon the sun would be up, but as yet Mr. Moon was the ruler of the sky.

"Mr. Sun will be here soon," Mr. Moon said, as he looked over the sleeping villages and towns and farms and cities.

"But I will take a little peep at morning just as morning arrives."

Mr. Moon sat up in the sky—on the edge of nothing. It appeared, and soon he saw a little girl named Mahalia walking along a country road.

"Why, there is my little friend Mahalia," said Mr. Moon to himself.

But even if he had said it in a very loud tone of voice he was too far away for Mahalia to have heard him.

He couldn't shout at her—especially as morning was coming along and he was feeling sleepy.

"Why, there is Mr. Moon," Mahalia said as she looked up at him.

"What a pretty moon you are, sitting off in the sky like that."

It was a shame, but Mr. Moon didn't hear that speech. He was almost asleep now, but he woke him-

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER (Established 1873)

BIG BUSINESS FOR FARMERS

The announcement made in Chicago that a cooperative farmers' marketing agency will acquire control of the five largest grain firms in the United States is the greatest step made in the advancement of cooperative marketing among the grain farmers of the country. The plan contemplates a corporation capitalized at $25,000,000, its business being to handle grains and seeds. The official announcement added also that the present heads of the largest elevator companies agreed to run their elevators for five years and instruct the farmers' representatives in the methods of operation.

The plan, though on a huge scale, appears to be the soundest cooperative marketing scheme yet advanced for the benefit of the grain farmer. It is not likely that the elevator companies would turn over their properties to the new organization if they did not wish it to be a success; indeed they will retain such an obligation on them for a time that it will be to their interest to see that the cooperative company is a success. It would indeed be an inspiring monument to the farmers of the nation if they could own, control and successfully direct the greatest grain marketing organization in the United States, and it would doubtless pay them handsomely if well managed.

That the proposed grain marketing organization is fostered by the American Farm Bureau, which already has handled many big problems of the farmer in a business-like fashion, bespeaks well for the possibilities of the agency.

AROUND THE CONFERENCE TABLE

High hopes will be entertained of the present inter-allied conference now in session in London. Many times previously the hopes of the world have been raised as a conference has gathered in Europe for the specific purpose of ironing out the problems of the nations, and each time there has been failure. Old-world jealousies, the exigencies of the political situation in the various countries, lack of vision and selfishness have been material factors in preventing the accomplishment of a plan which would put Germany and the rest of Europe on a sound basis.

At the present inter-allied conference, however, there is something tangible to be considered. The Dawes reparation plan as worked out by experts is before the delegates. It already has the endorsement of the leading statesmen of Europe. It offers a method by which Germany can be rehabilitated, can pay reparations and would settle the vexing problems which have brought an uncertainty about the future in all European countries.

With the French and British governments favorable to the Dawes plan, and Germany leaning toward it, there is hope that the work of American experts may be translated into effective action.

THE TRUTH AT LAST

In an effort to undo the mischief wrought by Kansas politicians full page advertisements are appearing in the big eastern dailies setting forth the merits of Kansas as a place in which to live and to do business. Especial stress is placed on the advantages which the Sunflower state offers to farmers. Nebraska and Iowa have been compelled to follow a similar course.

The advertisements tell a vastly different story from that which the duly elected representatives of Kansas have been telling in congress and in newspaper interviews for the past three years. It is these misrepresentatives who have made the present advertising campaign necessary.

The New York Times, which this week carried one of these full page advertisements at a large expense to a little group of Kansas newspapers, comments on the circumstances as follows:

The fact that the middle west and the northwest are filled with millions of enraged and despairing farmers has been sedulously put about for more than a year. The signs are that it has been much overdone. The farmers themselves are beginning to resent it. They don't take to the pictures of the west as a land where the banks are all going broke, the agricultural population is ruined itself and is running all the rest and the soil is being left uncultivated.

The western states still like to represent themselves as inviting fields for outside capital. They have not left off desiring to proclaim the opportunities which their rich lands offer to good farming. Latterly they have even begun to advertise their great attractions.

The Times points out that:

The western farmer is by no means a down-and-outer. He protests that he is an up-and-comer. Naturally, he has been willing to play the political game for all that there was in it. He did not openly object when the politicians in congress who pretended to speak for him insisted that he was a discredited bankrupt who must be helped by a dole out of the treasury. If others were getting government subsidies, the western farmers were not adverse to getting one for themselves, if it could be worked under some disguise or other. But now that those hopes and devices have turned out to be illusory, the farmers are going back to farming again, and displaying more of the spirit which has made them hitherto the typically independent-minded and self-reliant citizens of the United States.

They have reason to take courage from recent changes in the agricultural outlook. Tricky and insincere politics has failed the farmer, but nature and economic law now promise to do him a good turn. The price of wheat at Chicago has gone up 10 cents within a week. So good an authority as Professor David Friday predicts that by the autumn wheat will be selling at $1.25. If dollar wheat saved us from Bryan in 1896, dollar-and-a-quarter wheat ought to save us from the worst consequences of demagogues and disturbers of the peace this year. And the farmers are not so stupid as not to know whence their help came. It was not from humbugging tariff taxes on farm products. It was not from applying the quack remedy of reduced freight rates on agricultural shipments. It was not from the labors or machinations of the farm bloc in congress. All the bills that were to work the salvation of the farmer fell by the way. The trumpeters of the McNary-Haugan measure cried to all and sundry that no other plan could make the price of wheat bulge. But the much touted nostrum was discarded, yet the price of wheat at once shot up.

FABLES ON HEALTH PRE-NATAL DIET

When Mrs. Jones of Anytown was anticipating her first baby she had a long consultation with the family doctor on diet, exercise and other questions.

"One thing is certain," the doctor told her, "and that is the necessity of a well-balanced and mixed diet. The diet should contain a mixture of fats, proteins, minerals and carbohydrates. By all means, eat plenty of water."

"In the early days, when mother-hood is near, red meats should be eaten not more than once a day, while fish, eggs and meat should not be eaten every day, due to the protein content."

"On the other hand, fruits, vegetables—particularly vegetables, of the leafy variety—help build up the mineral supply which is needed."

half-dozen small ones. The medical world has discovered the old saying that an expectant mother has to eat for two. She has to do nothing of the sort, and eating foods that would be likely to disturb the stomach is silly.

"In the later days, when mother-hood is near, red meats should be eaten not more than once a day, while fish, eggs and meat should not be eaten every day, due to the protein content."

"I am so glad to see you, Sydney," she said. "I want to hear all about everything. You know I made a trip east because pictures purposely to find out if Jack is really flirting with that Mrs. Atherton. You know I met her at the reception given for once."

"In opposing direct mention of the Klan in his party's platform, he maintained that the emphasis and importance which such action would attach to the Klan would be the biggest factor in perpetuating it, or even in adding to its strength. Subsequent events seem to confirm this contention."

"In their new drive for membership, Klansmen are quoting George Washington as the first American voicing the Klan creed: They cite his famous order:

"Put none but Americans on guard tonight," as containing the Klan viewpoint, which they insist is merely a demand for Americanism as the first and supreme requirement for all posts of public trust.

"Also, the barrier set up by the Klan against any but native Americans is the same as that which native Americans set up against the Negro. The Klan is inspired by the same motive, and is identical in intent with Klan requirements. The Klan, however, is admitted, carries this limitation

The extent to which Klan influence and activities will enter into the coming campaign, scouts reporting here predict, has not been adequately estimated by even the most cynical political prognosticator.

Perhaps, because of the superheated atmosphere in this city during recent weeks, this is a distorted view. But the politically wise say that the Klan movement just now resembles the sweep of Know Nothingism back in the early 50's, which reached extremes of bitterness and vindictiveness not yet paralleled in the Klan situation.

The blistered heel which brought death to Calvin Coolidge Jr., from septic poisoning, was received in a game of tennis which he and his elder brother John played just after completing plans for their summer vacation.

The boys' visit with their parents at the White House, following the close of the school year at Mercersburg Academy, where John was graduated in June, was to be followed by a six weeks' stay at Camp Deerfield, Mass. There they were counting on having oneousing good time until late in August, when they were to return to Washington for another little "home visit" before returning to school. Calvin Jr. was to return to Mercersburg for his senior year, while John is slated to enter Amherst—his father's alma mater—in September.

THE NEW WAY OF DOING IT

By Albert Apple

In 1868 Nicholas M. Bell stood on the platform in Tammany Hall and placed in nomination Horatio Seymour as Democratic candidate for president.

"I was 26 years old at the time," Bell reminisces. "It took me 30 days to get to New York from Salem, Oregon, where I was a merchant."

Bell has lived to see an American in a steel flying machine cross the continent between dawn and darkness of one day. Quite a contrast with making it in a month.

You will see similar startling changes if you live as long as Bell. Speed is our generation's goal. Contentment was more the goal when Bell crossed the continent in 1868. Of course, he'd have gone faster if he could.

YANKS FALL IN AMERICANS

Washington and Detroit Both Close to League Leadership

Chicago, July 17.—New York retained a lead of a half game in the American League today, following defeat by Cleveland yesterday, 4 to 3. The Indians won the first game of the six game series by knocking Waite Hoyt out of the box in the sixth. Shauta pitched steadily for Cleveland.

Detroit advanced to within a game and a half of the league leadership, being just behind Washington, by defeating the Boston Red Sox in two games, 5 to 4 and 11 to 3. The Philadelphia Athletics won two games from the Chicago White Sox, 5 to 0 and 6 to 5. Washington was not scheduled to play.

In the Nationals, New York nosed out an 8 to 7 victory over Pittsburgh. Cuyler of Pittsburgh, however, featured, driving in four runs with two triples and a single. Kelley hit a homer. Brooklyn and Cincinnati divided a double header, Cincinnati taking the second game 9 to 6, after losing the first, 5 to 4.

The Chicago Cubs staged a rally in the ninth inning in the game with Philadelphia and scored two runs, but fell one short of victory, the Phillies winning 3 to 2. St. Louis took two games, beating Boston 7 to 4 and 11 to 3.

Inspired Rounds By Golf Duffers

By JOE WILLIAMS

You hear now and then of a golfer shooting an "inspired round." Maybe that is the phrase for it. It seems to fit the amazing 56 George Duncan scored during the Swisserland championship in 1913, and the almost equally amazing 62 Walter Hagen clicked off over a full length course at Bellaire, Fla., two springs ago. Somehow or other you are seldom surprised at anything the master golfers do.

But how are you to explain the sporadic flashes of brilliancy—the inspired rounds—of the ordinary golfer? By what formula of magic is the 85 player changed suddenly into a 70 scorer? And why does this inexplicable burst of genius always show itself during a matech against a champion?

Consider the case of Cyril Tolley. The giant 180 pound horse was good enough to win the French open and go to the finals in the French amateur. Yet in the British amateur he was knocked off by Denys Kyle.

Now who is the heck is Denys Kyle? Nobody ever heard of him in this country, and on the other side he was comparatively unknown. All Kyle did against Tolley was to race around the old St. Andrews course in 4 under even fours.

Tolley himself was 1 under fours. Still he lost 3 and 2. Kyle had bobbed up with one of those "inspired rounds." In briefer but more direct phraseology, he had "shot his foot off."

Bobby Jones probably runs afoul of more "inspired golfers" than any amateur in the world. The skilled and unskilled alike are always stroked beyond their best form when playing against the southern star.

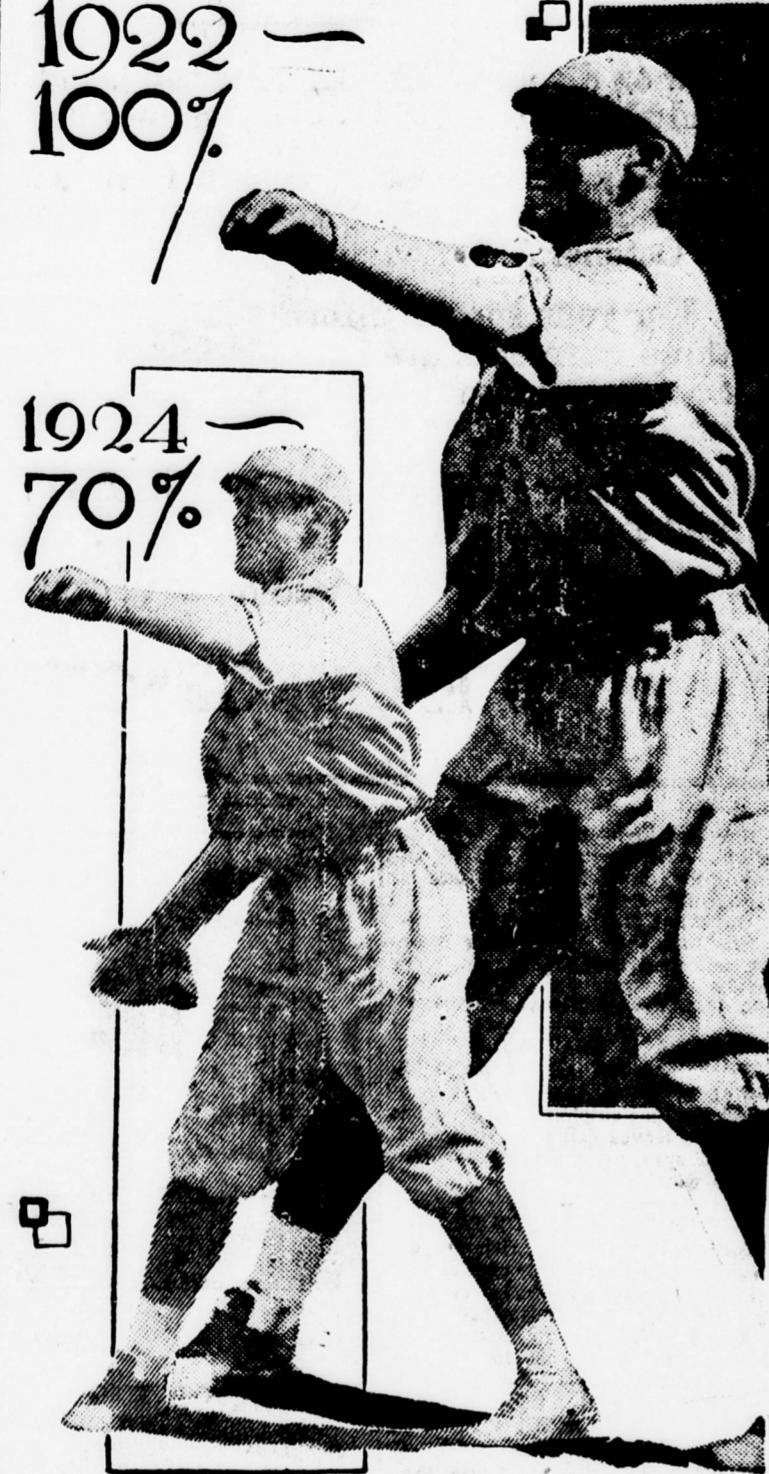

Dave Herron smothered Jones under a blanket of dazzling golf at Pittsburgh in 1919. Before that tournament started Herron was a rank outsider, 50-to-1 shot in the pools. Herron has never been close to the title since.

Jones will never forget the "inspired round" Jess Sweetser pulled on him at Brookline two years ago, when the Yale man had him six down at the turn during the morning round, and finished the 18 with a 69.

Imagine any golfer—even a

SISLER IS STILL "OFF" 30 PER CENT?

By NEA Service

New York, July 17.—While George Sisler of the St. Louis Browns has done a remarkable comeback after being out of the game for a year, American League pitchers say he is far removed from the dangerous latter of old.

A glance over the American League batting averages since the opening of the season bears out the opinion of the pitchers.

Sisler is still a great player and a good hitter, but far below his brilliant form of other years.

It is really remarkable that Sisler, after being out a year, has done as well as he has. He has had many obstacles to overcome.

In addition to his eye affliction, he carried the managerial burden as well as the worries of a business reversal.

Sisler is still a great player and a good hitter, but far below his brilliant form of other years.

The Misses Edith and Edna Rupp have returned from a pleasant visit with relatives in Wisconsin and Minnesota. They were away for about six weeks.

Section foreman Nels Anderson and crew were business callers in Wilton Wednesday going there to assist foreman Scott and his crew unloading gravel.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Rupp and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rupp and family were business callers at the county seat.

In pitching to Sisler I have noticed that he does not follow the ball as closely as when he was leading the league in hitting. As a result, he hits late, many of his drives going to left field, seemingly lacking in power.

Jury Returns 35 Indictments In Fargo Court

Fargo, July 17.—The federal grand jury which was empaneled, today completed its work, having indicted 35 persons for federal offenses within the state.

Forty-three cases are those of aliens who are alleged to have entered the United States without passports—smuggled in across the Canadian border. Two were cases of men charged with smuggling aliens, Isaac and Bernhardt Penner, residents of Canada, captured in North Dakota.

"That mosquito keeps buzzing around," said little Mahalia, "but doesn't come near me."

"Of course, I know it will come near me before long and bite me dreadfully. Mosquitoes bite me so dreadfully."

"Buzz, buzz, buzz," said Mrs. Mosquito, "I shall start my meal now."

"Oh, dear, oh, dear, whatever will I do to catch that mosquito?"

"Buzz, buzz, buzz," said Mrs. Mosquito, "I had a delicious little meal. Just a like appetizer to the good dinner which will follow."

"It got to eat too if I can find that mosquito," said little Mahalia. "And I'll put some witch hazel on my mosquito bite."

"Mahalia tried to catch the mosquito, but after a few tries the mosquito seemed to have disappeared. Then Mahalia put some witch hazel on the bite and went back to bed again."

She was feeling very tired now and she longed to go to sleep.

"I wonder if that mosquito is out of the room now," little Mahalia said hopefully.

"Buzz, buzz, buzz," said Mrs. Mosquito. "I'm back again for my second course."

"There is that dreadful mosquito in this room again," said little Mahalia. "What will I do?"

"Buzz, buzz, buzz," said Mrs. Mosquito. "It's all in readiness for my second course with my appetite at its best. This was a delicious little meal, I had before."

Bang, bang, bang went little Mahalia's hand, right down on her other wrist.

"I got it! I killed it," she cried.

"So little Mahalia went to sleep at last and the mean Mrs. Mosquito could do no more harm."

Bermuda Described as an Earthly Paradise

When one is planning a trip to Bermuda, about the first thing one hears is the remark generally attributed to Mark Twain, that the voyage to Bermuda is like going through hell to get to heaven. That depends on the weather on the Atlantic. Whatever exception to the first part of Mark Twain's epigram, no one will ever quarrel with his description of the islands, once they are safely reached.

Those who gather their impressions of the general appearance of Bermuda from colored-picture post cards are grossly deceived, because there are only two colors in the islands, green and white, says a Bermuda letter to the Brooklyn Eagle. The artist who colors the post cards represents the buildings as pink, red and orange, and a roof here of red, a blue one, there, and a yellow in another place, whereas every building, on the islands, with one or two exceptions, is not only white but whitewashed from the foundation walls to the ridge poles on the roof.

The first view one gets of the islands, when the steamer stops at St. David's Head to take on the stumps, is a rolling mass of dark green, covered with a stunted growth of trees, studded with numerous white buildings, all rising from a sea of azure, such as is always found when there is coral underneath.

"Buzz, buzz, buzz," said Mrs. Mosquito. "What a fine life I lead."

"I almost caught the mosquito just now," said little Mahalia, "but it escaped me somehow."

"Buzz, buzz, buzz," said Mrs. Mosquito. "I was almost caught that time. I had really very narrow escape. But I stayed very still and she didn't think she had me any more."

"Now I don't know where that mosquito has gone," said little Mahalia.

"Buzz, buzz, buzz," said Mrs. Mosquito. "There is good meat here to be kept warm on winter nights and a good fire made up for them. They should be nicely tucked in on a shelf in the cage, and in a journalist's house, at any rate, they will then sleep conveniently late in the morning."

Avoiding Foot Troubles

"Go to the dentist or your feet will ache."

"People always wonder if I am serious when I tell them this," said Mr. Dixon-Payne, educational organizer at the School of Chiropractic, to a writer in London Tit-Bits, "but if cavities in the teeth are neglected the joints of the whole body, particularly the joints of the foot, are affected. Only 25 per cent of the 27,000 girls employed by one firm who come before me for inspection have perfect feet."

"Shoes are not alone the cause of foot suffering. Stockings are often to blame. They are either too long or too tight."

"But the habit of wearing low-heeled shoes one day and high heels the next has an injurious effect on the feet. A woman's shoes should have the same heel level and thus the muscles would not be hurt."

All She Wanted

She was apparently a French woman who spoke Russian or vice versa, and when she visited the home office she produced her passport over and over again in the course of her conversation with several porters and messengers.

Eventually they found a man who in 1918 had been transferred from the French to the north Russian front. After a long conversation intelligence came to this man. Stopping the woman's conversation with one hand, he beckoned to his colleagues with the other.

"Lady wants a house or a small flat," he said.

Land of Many Tongues

Switzerland, unlike most countries, has no one official language. By the federal constitution German, French and Italian are recognized as "national languages," and debates in the federal legislature may be carried on in any of the three. According to a 1910 census 2,594,200 people in Switzerland spoke German; 783,200 French and 502,500 Italian. More than 40,000 spoke Romansh, which is derived from the Latin, but the tongue has no official recognition.

YANKS FALL IN AMERICANS

Washington and Detroit Both Close to League Leadership

Chicago, July 17.—New York retained a lead of a half game in the American League today, following defeat by Cleveland yesterday, 4 to 3. The Indians won the first game of the six game series by knocking Wante Hoyt out of the box in the sixth. Shantz pitched steadily for Cleveland.

Detroit advanced to within a game and a half of the league leadership, being just behind Washington, by defeating the Boston Red Sox in two games, 5 to 4 and 11 to 3. The Philadelphia Athletics won two games from the Chicago White Sox, 5 to 0 and 6 to 5. Washington was not scheduled to play.

In the Nationals, New York nosed out an 8 to 7 victory over Pittsburgh. Cuyler of Pittsburgh, however, featured, driving in four runs with two triples and a single. Kelley hit a homer. Brooklyn and Cincinnati divided a double header. Cincinnati taking the second game 9 to 6, after losing the first, 5 to 4.

The Chicago Cubs staged a rally in the ninth inning in the game with Philadelphia and scored two runs, but fell one short of victory, the Phillies winning 3 to 2. St. Louis took two games, beating Boston 7 to 4 and 11 to 3.

Inspired Rounds"
By Golf Duffers

-----------------	--	--

You hear now and then of a golfer shooting an "inspired round." Maybe that is the phrase for it. It seems to fit the amazing 56 George Duncan scored during the Switzerland championship in 1913, and the almost equally amazing 62 Walter Hagen cracked off over a full length course at Bellaria, Fla., two springs ago. Somehow or other you are seldom surprised at anything the master golfers do.

But how are you to explain the sporadic flashes of brilliancy—the inspired rounds—of the ordinary golfer? By what formula of magic is the 45 player changed suddenly into 70 "conver?" And why does this inexplicable burst of genius always show itself during a match against a champion?

Consider the case of Cyril Tolley. The giant mud horse was good enough to win the French open and go to the finals in the French amateur. Yet in the British amateur he was knocked off by Denys Kyle.

Now who is the heck is Denys Kyle? Nobody ever heard of him in this country, and on the other side he was comparatively unknown. All Kyle did against Tolley was to race around the old St. Andrews course in 4 under even fours.

Tolley himself was 1 under fours. Still he lost 3 and 2 Kyle had built up with one of those "inspired rounds." In briefer but more direct phraseology, he had "shot his foot" head off.

Bobby Jones probably runs a few of more "inspired golfers" than any amateur in the world. The skilled and unskilled alike are always stroke beyond their best form when playing against the southern star.

Dave Herren smothered Jones under a blanket of dazzling golf at Pittsburg in 1919. Before that tournament started Herren was a rank outsider, 5 to 10 shot in the pools. Herren has never been close to the title since.

Jones will never forget the "inspired round" Joss Sweetser pulled on him at Brookline two years ago, when the Yale man had his six down at the turn during the morning round, and finished the 18 with a 6. "Imagine any golfer—even a far from the dangerous bats as he once was. There is a lack of snap to his swing. His hits are more often Texas leaguers than line drives.

"In pitching to Sisler I have noticed that he does not follow the ball as closely as when he was leading the league in hitting. As a result, he hits late, many of his drives going to left field, seemingly lacking in power."

"Sisler is still a great player and a good hitter, but far below his brilliant form of other years."

It is really remarkable that Sisler, after being out a year, has done as well as he has. He has had many obstacles to overcome.

In addition to his eye affliction, he carried the managerial burden as well as the worries of a business reverse.

"Sisler is still a good player and a good hitter, but far below his brilliant form of other years."

It is really surprising how far some of the brainy stars of the game permit themselves to be carried with the pins stuff."

Along these lines it would be a difficult matter to convince the second baseman of the American League that some one hasn't put the double curse on that position.

The things that have happened to the second sackers in the Johnson organization this year reads like a hospital list from the battle field.

Second base is an important cog in the infield defense. Things happen fast and furious around the key-tone sack.

A majority of the double plays are pivoted at second base. The loss of a fraction of a second in executing a play often spells ruin. Failure to complete a double play is often the deciding factor in a half game.

Drop a star-second sacker out of a team's lineup and immediately the club suffers. One need only glance back over the records of certain American League clubs for such proof.

Five American League teams have felt the handicap of losing a star-second baseman through injury. Another suffered because a former veteran star couldn't strike his stride.

At different times since the opening of the season New York has been without Ward, Cleveland without Stephenson, Washington minus Morris, St. Louis McNamee and the Athletics for a time missed Bishop because of illness.

Early in the spring Derrill Pratt, 15 pounds lighter than last year, seemed set for a big season as a fielder. Pratt always could hit. This season he failed at the bat.

Eddie Collins at Chicago and Bill Wambergans of Boston are the only two regulars at the position who have not suffered because of illness or injury this year.

Last season both Collins and Wambergans were out for weeks because of injuries. So that the last two years have been tough ones on the American League second sacker.

That is why halfplayers are a second baseman in particular, I think the position is jinxed.

Since halfplayers are mighty superstitious, it would be a difficult matter to convince them to the contrary.

"Ain't it awful what these big cut and gravy fighters get away with nowadays?"

"Awful? It's raw murder. And look at the important jack they pull down, too!"

"Imagine paying a bologna like Dempsey $400,000 to stop a couple terrible rounds. If that's right, then hair nets make great parachutes."

"It wouldn't be so hard to inhale it. Dempsey could really fight, but all I got is a right hand."

"You uttered a few undying phrases there. Thick Lips. Why, any one of the old timers would have made him jump out of the ring."

"John L. Sullivan would have flattened him with both hands tied behind his ears, and I don't mean just softly."

And you don't have to stop with John L. either. Corbett would have jabbed him simple, and I under stand he isn't far from that as it is."

"I got too much consideration for my imagination to even suggest what Jeffries or Johnson would have done to him without even having a warm up."

OPTIMISM IS RULE AS G.O.P. PROGRESS TOLD

MAJOR'S BODY IS FOUND

Hopeful Reports Are Presented by Callers From Various Parts of U. S.

Washington, July 17.—President Coolidge's conference with William M. Butler, chairman of the Republican national committee to meet out further the immediate Republican campaign plans, was postponed to-day until early next week.

Mr. Butler had been expected to arrive in Washington in a day or so, but word was received at the White House that the chairman had decided to complete all arrangements for the opening of the party headquarters in New York, before coming to Washington.

The postponement of the conference with his campaign manager will afford Mr. Coolidge further opportunity to gather reports on the political situation in various states. He was furnished with summaries on the situation in five states through the most extensive series of political conferences in many days at the White House.

The president's political callers included Raymond Benjamin, of San Francisco, who was state chairman in California for six years prior to 1922 and who had general charge of Republican activities in that state.
Nevada, Oregon, Washington and Idaho in the 1920 campaign; Representative Vare, a Republican leader in Pennsylvania; Carmi Thompson, one of the Coolidge preconvention managers, and a party leader in Ohio.
Senator Brandegee, of Connecticut, and Representative McLaughlin, of Nebraska.

Secretary Weeks, returning from a vacation trip to Massachusetts, talked over political conditions in New England generally with Mr. Coolidge.

All of the president's political callers said they presented hopeful reports to the nominee.
